[redacted] has pioneered an automated bureau communications system based on a Wang OIS-50 with four work stations. The system eliminates time-consuming teletypist repunching. An IBM personal computer is also in use to automate consumer routing lists, easing a previously laborious, error-prone and time-consuming task. The procedures are being closely monitored for use at other FBIS field bureaus.

° FBIS aided on short notice a briefing for the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The briefing was to discuss a KRASNAYA ZVEZDA article on Soviet "Modern Weapons and Tactics." The DIA briefer called on the afternoon of 20 September asking FBIS assistance with a new translation of the article, as the one available was not satisfactory. Within seven hours, [redacted] Bureau had translated the highly technical article, in time for the briefing on 21 September.
